

SUES TO RECOVER $115,000 PROFITS FROM COL. BOPE

Trial of Case Growing Out of Iron and Steel Deal Comes Up Wednesday.

Trial of a suit against Col. Henry P. Bope, for years Senior Vice President of the Carnegie Steel Company, one of the "young men" the Steel King made a millionaire, and Capt. Ralph P. Watney, formerly of the British Army, by Arthur L. Pearce to recover $115,000 profits in transactions in iron and steel will come on Wednesday morning before Supreme Court Justice Gavegan.

The trial had been placed on the general calendar for to-day, but when called Ernest G. Stevens, trial counsel, explained that an adjournment was necessary by the absence of John B. Smiley, President of the Smiley Steel Company. Mr. Smiley, it was explained afterward by Mr. Stevens, is a friend of both Bope and Pearce and has displayed an unwillingness to appear. He has been subpoenaed.

The suit hinges around profits of a pool, which Pearce says was formed by himself, Bope and Watney, and whose operations netted the promoters nearly a half million dollars. Pearce contends that Bope and Watney have refused to divide with him. According to Pearce's allegations he introduced the defendants favorably so that the transactions could be made. Both defendants deny making a contract.

Col. Bope, it is alleged, took a contract under his own name with the Ashland Iron and Mining Company, turning it over to the John B. Smiley Company of No. 111 Broadway, which is said to have made $350,000. Of this profit, it is alleged half was loaned to the Bayles Shipyard Company of Port Jefferson, L. I.

Bope is said to have originally had an interest in the Smiley concern and is among other directors who had been sued to restore to the Smiley Steel Company the loan as well as $100,000 alleged to have been paid to Capt. Watney.

Bope, it was said, had been a defendant in a previous suit instituted by Watney, but had settled for a sum in the neighborhood of $100,000, which was divided by Watney and some of his friends. Briefs of the suit are now on file in the Appellate Division. The profits are said to have accrued when steel jumped from $30 to $35 a ton.

The plaintiff, Pearce, through his counsel, Goodale & Hanson, will contend that Bope and Watney are trying to renege the contract. Smiley's books have been subpoenaed. The charge is made openly that Bope tried to conceal alleged profits of the pool by turning the accounts over to his friend, Smiley.

Col. Bope is President of the American Republican Club, Pittsburgh, but for many years has made his headquarters in New York. Watney came to America and was introduced as a nephew of the late Lord Kitchener and was admitted to the purchase of war supplies in this country.

The present suit does not involve British supplies, however, but is said to have resulted from purely personal speculative transactions. Charles Maitland Beattie has been retained as counsel for Col. Bope, while William J. Fallon represents Capt. Watney.

White Plains Man Wants Separation—Carpenter Alimony Raised
From $44 to $100 a Month.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Dec. 1.—In an action for separation brought by John J. Kutch against his wife, Susan A. Kutch of Manhattan, in the Supreme Court at White Plains, the defendant has filed counter charges of cruelty against her husband. She alleges that "almost immediately after their marriage the plaintiff gave manifestation of violent temper and would fly into a rage at any trivial thing."

Because Zopher Carpenter, son of the late Francis M. Carpenter, President of a title company and one time senator of Westchester County, recently fell heir to his father's estate, Mrs. Florence P. Carpenter, his wife, who divorced him a few years ago, has been allowed increased alimony. Mr. Carpenter was paying his wife $11 a week. Supreme Court Justice Young was told that Mr. Carpenter was left a trust fund of $50,000 and $25,000 cash. The Justice then fixed the alimony rate at $100 a month beginning to-day.

Supreme Court Justice Young has awarded $20 a week alimony to Mrs. Florence Palmer of Port Chester during the pendency of the trial of the separation suit brought against her by her husband, William J. Palmer. Palmer claims his wife treated him cruelly and alleges that she often threw pieces of crockery at his head.

Dr. Day Asks Zone Officers for Permission to Sell Direct to the Public.

Fifty thousand blankets may be offered through the thirteen Navy food stations under the Department of Marine Affairs as a result of negotiations which Commissioner Day has opened with the Army authorities.

The consignment sought by Dr. Day is part of a surplus of more than 2,000,000 yards of textiles held by the Army including melton, blanket, outing and shirting flannel, muslin, felt, duck and cotton cloth. It is olive drab in color, but it wanted for use in overcoat lengths could be dyed any color. The surplus textiles have been offered to dealers and manufacturers and Dr. Day has urged the zone supply officers to let him sell direct to the public any materials in demand. No price has been set by the Government on the goods, but Dr. Day believes it will be at a figure that will show a big saving over current prices.

Navy food sales Saturday were $19,000. Dr. Day said large quantities of corned beef were being sold.
